BEACON
GALLERY

Dear Art Lover:

More than ever, in a world full of change and consternation, the world of art provides a refuge.

Since we opened our doors in 2017, it has been the mission of Beacon Gallery to provide a platform and resources for artists to share with audiences their highly interpretive works, and to shed a contemplative light on the most critical issues affecting and shaping our society. This includes social equality, social justice, gender rights and equality, environmentalism, immigration, human rights, and more.

Through art, we seek to not only provide a venue for artists and collectors alike but to also engage the wider Boston community and beyond – allowing ourselves to reflect and connect on those issues that impact us as a society. We believe that artists and their art can have a profound impact on how we understand and manage today’s biggest challenges.

Beacon Gallery is proud to serve a thriving art community and connect with the many wonderful galleries that enrich our historic and evolving city. We also work to support organizations doing important work in the areas of women’s health, ecology, youth empowerment and community activism, amongst others.

We strive to create and follow our own path – striving to promote our artists as well as serve as a haven and resource to expand appreciation, discussion and debate, and educational awareness around the arts and relevant current issues.

Our hope is that you will appreciate our efforts and enjoy the exhibitions. What brings us joy is for you to engage in the uniquely creative expression shared by artists and art lovers.

Thank you for your support,

Christine and the Beacon Gallery Team
